

A classmate is acting out and it really scares me but no one seems to care how I feel.

A friend keeps bothering me even when I have told them to leave me alone.

At morning meeting people around me are talking and I can not hear what the teacher is saying.

I am shopping at Target with a group of staff and friends from Phase. I am looking at CD's and when I look up, everyone is gone.

I am riding in the van on the way to Northland. We get into an accident and no one is awake except me. What am I going to do when people come to help?

I hear some of my friends talking about getting together this weekend and they are not including me. I am feeling sad and very left out.

I am soooooo tired that I am having a hard time staying awake and paying attention in class. What can I do?
